

ToK teaches you how to think... the point isn't always to learn something new, it's to learn to process things in a different way. So, don't expect to gain new knowledge, just be prepared to reconsider the way that you think about the knowledge [claims] that you come across.

The framework below is called the "Think ToK Model": It's a great place to start as you think about the knowledge we discuss as well as the formation/creation of knowledge questions.

